

APPAREL FOR MEN SHOWN BY TAILORS

Score of Members of Local Association Discuss Season's Styles.

ATTENTION CALLED TO MARKED CHANGES

Law Is Laid Down and Many Pet Frivolities Are Abolished.

The exterior rehabilitation of man, mere Washington man, was planned, plotted, and consummated last night, when a score of our tailors gathered at the Chamber of Commerce rooms and exhibited, under the auspices of the Merchant Tailors and Custom Cutters' Association of Washington, just the kind of clothes everybody must wear, whether or no.

To the unprofessional, who knows nothing about flares, seams, biases, vents, flaps, and pads, the whole arrangement seems most confusing. He knows that something has happened to his favorite style, in daily use for some two seasons' past, but he's got to take the tailor's word for what it is. As hearty as could be gathered by a novice, here are some of the things that will happen, or have already as good as happened:

Some of the Changes.

All silk stripes must go from dress-suit trousers. None but the distinguished eccentric may affect these.

"Spiketail" coats must have peaked lapels, be about six inches shorter than your old one, and have severely plain sleeves embellished with three cute, little buttons.

Ditto as to peaked lapels on the tuxedos, and velvet collars must not be worn on dinner jackets, unless one would seek notoriety.

Pale grays and whites in silk are preferable in waistcoats for evening wear. Double-breasted waistcoats for business and other wear are nix. They are done for.

This season's frock is cut closer in the skirts, a little shorter, standing just to the bend of the knee. Lapels broader and longer.

The dear, little pearl-shade gloves will be seen more than whites for winter evening wear. 'Tis fashion's decree.

Cutaways, morning coats, should be worn in black and dark gray oxfords only; business cutaways may be made up in Scotch chevrons and fancy worsteds, rough effects preferred, and cut considerably shorter than last year.

A five-buttoned sack, high collar, short lapel, distinct rounded corners, is the thing now, although its life for more than two seasons is despaired of. Brown and green combinations rule in sack suits.

"Bryn Mawr Paddock." Is the overcoat one must affect, unless he's going to spend the winter in a hospital or some other secluded spot. Looks like a French walking garment, fits closely in the back, flares in the hips to give a skirt effect, but has no seams or vents. No buttons in the back, no flaps anywhere. The garment will be padded out in front to give an air of chestiness, rather than at the shoulders, to give a pugilistic appearance.

That's a summary of what the tailors will tell you when you order the fall suit. Many saw the exhibition, praised it, and a number promised to submit to it, and changes fashion might decide, providing, of course, suitable arrangements as to the little matter of terms could be made.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Officers were elected by the Democratic Club of George Washington University last night, and an appeal was made for the students to go home to vote. Dr. William R. Vance was the principal speaker of the evening. The officers named are: R. L. Holmes, president; E. P. Gates, vice president; F. T. Mayre, secretary, and J. R. Curt, treasurer.

Autos and Chorus Girls Lead Gilded Youth to Police Cell

Perry T. Marquette, Who Also Has Other Names, Charged With Using Bad Checks, Says Father Is Rich and Shows Money in Bank.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Chorus girls, wine suppers and "burning up the yards" in automobiles are the causes for the downfall of a young man of many names who last night changed his abode from the Saratoga Hotel to the Central police station.

The name by which the prisoner is booked on a charge of passing bogus checks, is Perry T. Marquette. He is also known as Bert Maerker, Robert Maucher, Robert Mercher, and various other cognomens.

His arrest was caused by C. W. Motley, proprietor of an automobile livery at 349 Michigan avenue. Last Tuesday, Marquette engaged an auto, with chauffeur, from the Motley company for three days. He tendered in payment a check for $120 drawn on a Philadelphia bank.

Helpless Woman Sees Death Near As Gas Pours From Broken Stove; Unconscious When Sister Returns

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Unable to move, or even to utter a cry, although death by asphyxiation was surely approaching her, Miss Catharine Whalen, thirty-two years old, a helpless paralytic, was rescued yesterday at her home, 310 West 118th street, just in time to save her life.

Miss Whalen, who has been afflicted for several years, lives with her younger sister, Margaret, on the upper floor of the farmhouse at the above address. She was seldom left alone, and spent most of her waking hours in the kitchen or dining room, where she could see her sister working about the place.

The cooking of the little household is done on a gas stove. Margaret was preparing a soup for dinner yesterday when she remembered she needed one more ingredient for it. She propped Catharine in a chair within four feet of the gas stove, put a book in her lap, and then went out.

Soon after Margaret had left a peculiar flickering at the stove drew Catharine's eyes from her book. To her horror she saw that the end of the tube had become loosened from the stove. Slowly, before her eyes, which were fixed on the tube, it came off and dropped to the floor. At the same moment the flame died out, and the deadly gas began to pour into the small room at full pressure.

The paralytic was so close to the stove that she could have touched the detached tube with her foot, had she possessed the slightest power of motion. She tried, desperately, to move, but could not lift even a finger. In a frenzy of fear she tried to scream, but only a feeble sound could she utter. She listened to some footstep in the hallway, but all was still.

She could hear the laughter of the children in the flat across the hall.

Pretty soon she began to feel the effects of the deadly gas. As fate would have it the windows were closed, and there was no hope for her in that direction.

The odor of the escaping gas became stronger and stronger, and the breathing of the woman became more and more difficult. Then came a great pounding noise in her ears, the stove and the windows danced before her eyes, she seemed to rise from her chair and float toward the ceiling and then, when all hope was gone, she lost consciousness, and her head fell forward.

She regained her senses once, twice, three times, but only for an instant, and then relapsed into the coma of approaching asphyxiation.

It required a long time to restore the paralytic to consciousness. But for the younger sister's prompt action in opening the windows Catharine would have died, the doctor said.

WHAT IS ITCH DIRT?

It is the old Anglo-Saxon name for dandruff, and it's a good one. If you have dandruff you have itch dirt, and the little microbes that are part and parcel of dandruff, are working persistently night and day, and sooner or later will reach the very life of your hair and destroy its vitality.

Then you'll be bald—bald to stay—for not even the wonderful rejuvenating properties in Parian Sage can grow hair after the hair bulb or root is dead. Parian Sage cures dandruff. Henry Evans, the druggist, sells it, recommends it, and guarantees it; only 50 cents a bottle, and your money back if it fails to cure dandruff, falling hair and itching of the scalp. If you do not live near Henry Evans, who sells Parian Sage, the American makers, the Groux Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y., will send you a bottle for 50 cents, all charges prepaid. There is no hair restorer so good—accept no substitute.

DEMOCRATS TO MEET.

Representative L. F. Livingstone of Georgia, and Charles A. Douglas, of Washington, will address the Virginia Democratic Association, at the meeting to be held in the red parlor of the Riggs House, at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

TAFT IS TOASTED.

"Taft does not represent anything, and during the last four years we have had enough of 'my policies' to disgust every American," said Prof. William Richardson, historian of the G. A. R., in an address before the District of Columbia Democratic Association at its rooms in the Munsey building last night.

W. Nye, A. E. McLaughlin, and George Keelen followed him.

Don't wash and scrub, bend and rub over a hot wash tub; sift a little GOLD DUST in the water, loosen the dirt, and save rubbing

Soap is not a bit of cleansing good until it is mixed with water and made into suds. And then it still needs the rub-rub-rub of human muscle.

GOLD DUST works in an entirely different way—instantly and totally dissolves in hot or cold, hard or soft water—and, without any aid from you, starts to cleanse.

GOLD DUST is more than soap—better and more economical. It is a powder of magic power—but rightly directed power that leaves the wash white, sweet, whole—

Use your brains, not your muscle!

Throw away your soap, get GOLD DUST, and simply use it according to the directions on the package.
